Animal Law MSL

Lewis & Clark Law School is proud to offer the United States' first advanced legal degree for non-lawyers in animal law. Our Animal Law MSL—offered in-person and online—is designed for U.S. and international bachelor's degree holders who desire to focus on animal law in research, public policy, advocacy, teaching, and more. Our commitment is to educate and train students to become leaders in animal law and experts in the field. We offer the most extensive animal law curriculum in the world, along with opportunities to take advantage of the many other benefits of the animal law community at Lewis & Clark Law School.

Career Pathways

Paving career pathways for our Animal Law advanced degree alumni starts while they are in the Animal Law program. We support our alumni's efforts through our Global Ambassador Program and by facilitating opportunities like being invited as speakers at conferences, supporting animal law work through microgrants, and helping them develop innovative approaches to animal protection. Our alumni are making a difference for animals around the world in an array of areas, including: animal protection, facilitating development of the field of animal law, outreach, academic research/scholarship and more.

Advanced Learning

In addition to traditional coursework, CALS offers experiential learning opportunities for in-person MSL students, such as:

- Farmed Animal Protection Project concentrates on farmed animal protection and lawyering skills used by farmed animal protection legal advocates. In-class exercises teach farmed animal protection legal strategies and lawyering skills and students create an individual project in the field of farmed animal protection law.

Scholarships

CALS is pleased to offer full and partial scholarships for our Animal Law MSL program. These scholarships are available due to the generous support we receive from donors committed to educating the next generation of animal law advocates.
