

Introducing the World's First
Animal Law LL.M. Degree

Lewis & Clark
Law School

“From the start of animal law, there has been a crying need for attorneys who are experts in the field. Until recently, their training was on the job. An attorney who obtains an LL.M. in Animal Law from Lewis & Clark is clearly committed to the field and will have received the most complete and rigorous education in animal law available anywhere. The animals and the movement will be the beneficiaries of that commitment.”

— Joyce Tischler
Founder and General Counsel,
Animal Legal Defense Fund

Center for Animal Law Studies at Lewis & Clark

In Collaboration with the Animal Legal Defense Fund

Historic Development in Animal Law

Lewis & Clark Law School is launching the world's first Animal Law LL.M. Degree. With renowned teachers and resources, Lewis & Clark is the perfect home for this cutting-edge program. With this new degree, our graduates will be poised to be the leading legal educators and advocates in the field.

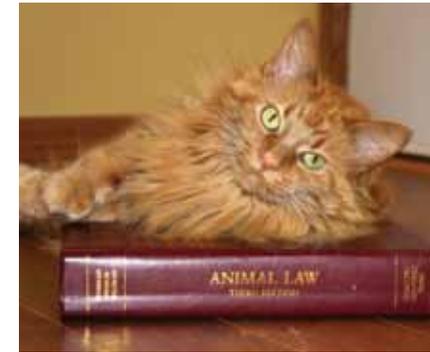

Exceptional Animal Law Opportunities

Students who choose the Animal Law LL.M. Program at Lewis & Clark will also benefit from being at a school that hosts the longest-running academic animal law conference in the world (The Animal Law Conference at Lewis & Clark, celebrating its 20th anniversary in 2012); publishes the first law review journal dedicated to animal law issues (Animal Law, now in its 18th year); houses the first Student Animal Legal Defense Fund (SALDF) chapter; co-hosts the National Animal Law Competitions (marking its 10th year in 2013); offers the only Summer Intensive Animal Law Program in the world; and seeks to provide numerous other experiential opportunities through clerkships, internships and fellow positions.

Because Animals Matter

Whether recognized for their intrinsic worth, their role as companions, or the value they bring to the environment and the world economy, animals are integral to every aspect of human society. As our lives become ever more intertwined with animals, whether they be companions, lab animals, wildlife, farmed animals or animals used for our entertainment, opportunities in animal law will only continue to grow.

Animal Law LL.M. students will have the opportunity to develop a curriculum specific to their career aspirations, whether it is teaching, or practicing law in a private firm, non-profit organization, or government agency.

Information on how to apply, deadlines, tuition and fees is available on our website, CenterForAnimalLawStudies.org.

"With the launch of the LL.M., Lewis & Clark continues its strong commitment to developing animal law education. We are proud of our long history and tradition of being the leader in the field. As we continue our efforts to provide the most comprehensive and rigorous animal law education available anywhere, we look forward to welcoming the first-ever Animal Law LL.M. class in the fall of 2012. These scholars will leave Lewis & Clark well-equipped to tackle some of the most difficult law and policy issues facing this generation of animal law advocates."

— Robert H. Klonoff
Dean and Professor of Law, Lewis & Clark Law School

Who We Are

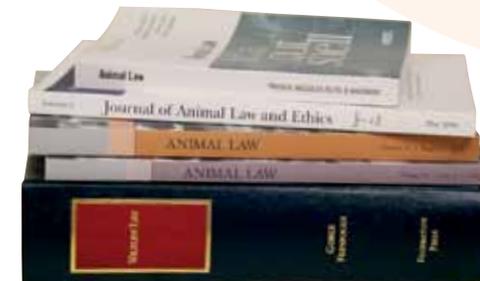

Founded in 2008, the Center for Animal Law Studies, in collaboration with the Animal Legal Defense Fund (The Center), is the home of the animal law programs and activities of Lewis & Clark Law School. The Center works to educate and support law students and legal professionals through classes, conferences, scholarships, competitions, and clinical opportunities. The Center is a policy institution, an animal law think tank, and the umbrella organization of the nation's premier scholarly animal law program. We offer a rigorous curriculum and valuable training to educate the next generation of animal law attorneys. The Center proudly continues the twenty-year tradition of animal law at Lewis & Clark Law School by offering the world's first advanced degree in the field.

Examples of courses available to our students:

- Animal Cruelty: The Link to Domestic Violence Law & Policy
- Animal Law: Advanced Legal Research
- Animal Law Clinic I & II
- Animal Law Fundamentals
- Animal Law Litigation
- Animal Law Legislation Clinical Internship Seminar
- Animal Law Philosophy & Development
- Animal Rights Law & Jurisprudence
- Animal Testing: The Law of Humane Science
- Animals in Commerce
- Animals in Entertainment
- Comparative Animal Law
- Crimes Against Animals: Law & Policy Seminar
- Emerging Law, Policy & Politics of Companion Animals
- Endangered Species Act Seminar
- Equine Law
- Farmed Animals: Law & Policy Seminar
- First Amendment Issues in Animal Law
- General Counsel Topics for Animal Welfare Non-Profits
- Pacific Salmon Seminar
- International Wildlife Law
- State Regulation of Animals
- Transactional Approach to Animal Law
- Wildlife Law

Creating the Next Generation of Animal Law Attorneys

10015 S.W. Terwilliger Blvd. • Portland, Oregon 97219
503-768-6960 • CenterForAnimalLawStudies.org

LEWIS & CLARK LAW SCHOOL
10015 S.W. Terwilliger Blvd.
Portland, Oregon 97219

Creating the Next Generation of Animal Law Attorneys

NON-PROFIT ORG.
U.S. POSTAGE
PAID
PERMIT NO. 438
PORTLAND, OR

50% Recycled Fibers