

M.S.L. Application Packet: 2014-15

Environmental and Natural Resources Law

Summary of Program

The program leading to the master of studies in environmental and natural resources law (M.S.L.) is for graduates who want to emphasize this area in practice, teaching, research, or public policy. This program is intended for those interested in learning about environmental and natural resources law, but who do not wish to practice law or obtain a law degree. It is not suitable for students seeking an introduction to U.S. law.

Lewis & Clark's M.S.L. program requires completion of 26 semester hours of credit. The program can be completed in two semesters or spread over three years. Absent unusual circumstances, we require students to begin in mid-August in order to attend a 2-credit course designed to help prepare students for study in a law school environment.

Please consult our website, law.lclark.edu, for a complete description of the M.S.L. program, courses, and faculty.

Admissions Criteria

Applicants must have a bachelor's degree from an accredited U.S. college and must demonstrate an excellent academic record, strong research and writing skills, and an interest in environmental and natural resources law or policy.

Each application is evaluated as a whole. We are interested in your scholarly capacity, your academic performance, and your interest in the environmental and natural resources law field. Students can expect extensive reading assignments, vigorous class discussion, and either a written examination or extensive research paper in each course.

Costs and Financial Aid

Tuition for the 2013-14 academic year is $1,432 per credit, or $37,232 for 26 credits. Tuition for 2014-15 will be announced in February 2014. The actual cost in any semester depends on the number of credits a student takes. In addition, a fee of $42.50 per semester plus $934 per semester for health insurance should be calculated into academic expenses, along with a book allowance of about $800 per semester. Students should also anticipate a budget of $10,000 for living expenses per semester. All tuition and fees are subject to change on an annual basis.

Financial aid (in the form of loans) is available to qualified U.S. students. A limited number of scholarships are available to outstanding U.S. students based on merit and need. To be considered for scholarships, students should include a letter with their application materials explaining their need for assistance.

If you plan to apply for loans (available to qualified U.S. citizens), request financial aid forms by checking the box on the attached application. You should complete and return the financial aid forms as soon as possible. Because financial aid decisions may lag behind admission decisions, you should not wait until you have received an offer of admission to apply for financial aid.

Application Deadlines

Applications for fall semester (August 2014 admission) are due July 15. However, we consider applications on a rolling basis and accept applications throughout the year. We will also consider applications past the admissions deadlines if there is still room in the class.

Application Instructions

To apply, please submit the following to the M.S.L. program director (address on application form):

- Completed M.S.L. application (attached), signed and dated.
- Nonrefundable $50 application fee.
- Letter explaining, in about 200 words, why you seek an M.S.L. in environmental and natural resources law.
- Three letters of reference written by people who know you well. These letters should be written to help the Admissions Committee evaluate your academic capacity, ethical character, and writing and research skills. The letters do not need to be sealed and may be submitted directly to the law school or with the other application materials.
- Current resume or curriculum vitae.
- Writing sample of approximately 10-15 pages that will demonstrate your ability to organize, reason, and communicate. The sample need not be environmental in nature, but should be a writing example that demonstrates your best writing, research, and analytical skills.
- Official transcripts from undergraduate institution and other graduate institutions, if applicable.

Admission Process

Your admission file is created when the law school receives your completed application form and application fee. You may choose to submit all of your documents at once or to submit as many of the documents as you can at one time, with other items such as transcripts and reference letters, to follow. For U.S. students seeking loans, please submit and file financial aid forms as soon as possible; do not wait until you have received an offer of admission.

Once your file is complete, the Admissions Committee will review it and contact you regarding the decision. If you accept an offer of admission, you must submit a nonrefundable tuition deposit of $250 within three weeks after notification of admission to hold your place in the class.

Academic Calendar

The law school is on the semester system, with 13 weeks of classes and two weeks of exams in each semester. The fall semester generally begins the last week of August and ends the third or fourth week of December for a three-week winter break. The spring semester generally begins in mid-January and ends in early May, with a one-week spring break in March. The M.S.L. seminar begins in mid-August prior to the start of fall classes.
