The decision to invest in a high-quality legal education may be one of the most important choices you make. Much of the responsibility for funding your education will rest with you, but Lewis & Clark's financial aid program can help.

We focus primarily on providing gift aid to students who demonstrate academic merit. However, we also offer grants that consider financial need, diversity, a desire to work in the public-interest sector, and other factors.

No matter your situation, we are committed to working in partnership with you to identify your best financial options and strategies for attending Lewis & Clark Law School.

1

Apply for admission.

- All admitted students are automatically considered for scholarships and grants.
- You do not need to fill out any separate applications for scholarships or grants as an entering student.

2

Submit your FAFSA.

- You can find the FAFSA online at FAFSA.gov beginning October 1, 2019.
- For priority consideration, submit your FAFSA by February 15, 2020.
- Complete your FAFSA with 2018 income figures. We recommend using the IRS Data Retrieval Tool to transfer your tax information into your application.
- Make sure to include Lewis & Clark as a school that can access your FAFSA data. Our federal school code is 003197.

Watch your email—we'll be in touch if we need any additional information.

FAFSA

The Free Application for Federal Student Aid is used to determine eligibility for federal financial aid. The bulk of federal financial aid for law students comes in the form of student loans. Remember these important details about the FAFSA:

Don't wait. To be considered for student loans, you must submit the FAFSA. Please apply by the priority deadline.

Don't worry. You do not need to finish your 2019 tax return before you submit the FAFSA. Income for the 2018 tax year will be reported, and we recommend using the IRS Data Retrieval Tool to transfer this information into your application. It's quick, easy, and accurate!

Read your Student Aid Report (SAR). You will receive your SAR after your FAFSA is processed. If there are any issues with your FAFSA, you will be given further instructions.

Follow through as soon as possible. If we need any additional information, we will be in touch. Please reply as quickly as you can. A delay on your part may delay your offer of financial assistance.

In the 2018–19 school year, Lewis & Clark law students received $10,474,091 in scholarships.

Student Employment

Students have a variety of employment options available. Some work on campus, such as in the Boley Law Library, or at selected off-campus agencies, while others pursue more general part-time work in the community. The law school's Office of Career Services posts job listings for students and can assist you with locating clerkships, work-study opportunities, externships, pro bono experiences, and public interest stipends for summer work.

Federal Work-Study

FAFSA required for consideration.

Recipients must have completed their first year of law school.

- Eligibility depends on financial need
- Wages range from minimum wage up to $21.50 per hour
- Recipients must seek out and secure their own jobs from a pool of legal positions with contracted employers
- An offer of work-study will replace an equivalent amount of loan eligibility in the student's financial aid package

Student Loans

Most law students find loan programs to be useful resources for financing their legal education. These funds allow students to borrow against their future earning potential, which research indicates improves with advanced educational attainment. The FAFSA must be filed each year to access the federal student loan programs. The average student loan amount for Lewis & Clark Law School JD students who graduated in the 2018–19 year and borrowed loans was approximately $136,500.

In the 2018–19 school year, Lewis & Clark law students received $19,548,916 in loans from the following sources:

Private Student Loans

Private loans tend to be some of the most expensive sources of funding, so students should carefully consider all federal borrowing options before turning to a private loan. Private loans, which are offered by a variety of lending institutions, are typically unsubsidized. No FAFSA is required. Approval is based on a review of the borrower's credit history and credit score. The eligibility criteria, interest rates, fee structures, and repayment terms of private loans vary greatly from lender to lender.

Bar Study Loans

Bar study loans are credit-qualified private loans intended to help cover expenses incurred after graduation while a student prepares for the bar exam. Review information on lender websites for details on the loan programs. Please note that some lenders require a previous borrowing relationship to qualify for the bar study loan.

Loan Repayment

Lewis & Clark Law School Loan Repayment Assistance Program (LRAP)

Our LRAP helps JD graduates take the public interest jobs they desire without worrying about how to make their monthly payments on law school loans. There is no set cap on the amount of assistance an individual graduate can receive, and we regularly help with up to 100 percent of law school loan repayment obligations over a three- to five-year period depending on funds available.

State Bar Association Repayment Programs

The bar associations in many states also offer loan repayment assistance to new attorneys working in public interest organizations or qualified government agencies. Contact the bar association in the state where you wish to practice law to inquire about assistance, qualifications, and their application process.

Federal Student Loan Repayment Options

A variety of repayment plans are available to borrowers. Under debt-driven plans, the monthly payment amount is calculated based on total debt, interest rate, and length of repayment period. Under income-driven plans, the monthly payment amount is calculated as a percentage of your discretionary income. Learn more about repayment options at studentaid.gov/repay. Those who plan to work in the public interest should also explore the Public Service Loan Forgiveness program.

Cost

Lewis & Clark Law School is a private school, so tuition is the same for all students regardless of state of residency.

2020-21

Tuition and fees

Full-time	$50,098
Part-time	$37,572
Health insurance.	TBD; $3,000* in 2019–20 for 1Ls
Loan Repayment Assistance Program (LRAP) fee	$50
Summer school (optional)†	$1,850/credit

Additional costs

Living, transportation, and personal expenses (maximum allowable).	$25,200
Books and supplies (estimated).	$1,600

Living expenses vary depending on each student’s own personal needs and circumstances. There are many ways to reduce these costs while in law school, such as sharing housing and using alternative transportation. Keep in mind that Oregon has no sales tax, so make some of your planned law school purchases after you relocate to Portland. Visit go.lclark.edu/living-expenses to see three sample 9-month budgets for living expenses. We also recommend that you review the Money Management section of the Financial Aid website at go.lclark.edu/money_management.

Student borrowers should be aware that federal student loans are subject to origination fees. The fees are calculated as a percentage of the total loan amount and deducted from each loan disbursement. See page 6 for the percentages.

Billing and Payment

The Office of Student and Departmental Account Services divides annual charges in half and bills your student account before each semester. An online account statement will be provided when your account is billed. Our students have a variety of choices when settling their accounts:

- Pay the balance due in full
- Apply financial aid, including federal student loans
- Enroll in a monthly payment plan with Nelnet: Tuition Management Systems (TMS) at lclark.afford.com

*Cost of student health insurance will be determined before the start of the Fall 2020 semester.

†Summer school courses are 2 to 3 credits. In addition, students can undertake summer externships that range from 3 to 12 credits. Many students take one or two courses over one summer. Students taking two summer school classes may become eligible to graduate early or to take part-time semesters and still graduate in three years in the full-time program.

Tips for Comparing Financial Aid Packages

When making financial aid package comparisons, remember to consider the following criteria to accurately compare the net costs for your attendance at each school:

- Estimated living expenses. Does the school use an average cost-of-living rate, or the lowest rate recommended? Make sure to use the same comparative factor. (Lewis & Clark uses the average.)
- Scholarship terms. Is the scholarship renewable? Do you need to have a minimum GPA to keep your award? How many students lose their scholarships?
- Tuition calculation. Is tuition charged per year, per semester, or per credit? If tuition is charged per credit, how many credits are required to graduate?
- Fees. Does the school charge fees beyond tuition, and is it clear what those fees are?
