 Lewis & Clark Law School

MESSAGE FROM THE DEAN

“When I first visited Lewis & Clark Law School, I was inspired by the sense of place—how the campus embraces the surrounding natural landscape with outdoor spaces and embedded trees—and also by the caliber of students I met and the city of Portland itself.

Since joining the community as dean, I have been inspired every day by the people—students, faculty, staff, and alumni—and their commitment to academic excellence and professional growth. Whether it is in our extraordinary Lawyering program, our world-renowned clinics, our Advocacy Center, our externships and practicums, or our traditional classrooms, we offer opportunities to learn the art of lawyering through practice, which in turn leads to rewarding jobs for our graduates and engagement in our communities. In addition to our outstanding faculty and staff, over 30 law school student groups connect and support our students. This is a community of which I am proud to be a part. I hope you too find Lewis & Clark Law to be the right place for you.”

“Lewis & Clark Law School stood out to me not only on the strengths of its renowned academics, but also the kindness and warmth of the staff, faculty, and students. Everyone wants you to be able to do your best in your own way. I don't think there are many law schools that are similar in this regard.”

OF THE CLASS OF 2024 SECURED EMPLOYMENT WITHIN TEN MONTHS OF GRADUATION, WITH 83% IN POSITIONS REQUIRING OR PREFERRED A JD DEGREE AND BAR PASSAGE.

MENTORING MEANS SUCCESS

From the first time you set foot on campus, until long after graduation, you will have access to a strong system of academic and professional support. Through our comprehensive Mentor Network, all incoming students are paired with not one but four mentors:

Peer mentors share study skills, exam strategies, and help navigate the ins and outs of first year law school life. They also share tips on the best local spots for coffee, food, studying, and more.

Faculty advisors are there to provide perspective and assistance in class choices, paper topics, and career advice.

Career Services advisors assist with professional development and job search strategies, both during your legal education and beyond.

Attorney mentors, often alumni, offer invaluable insights and connections within the legal community.

OUTCOMES THAT SPEAK FOR THEMSELVES

Our results speak for themselves. Over 90% of the class of 2023 secured employment within ten months of graduation, with nearly 85% in positions requiring or preferring a JD degree.

For the second year in a row, L&C had the highest bar pass rate in the state of Oregon, with 83 percent of our first-time bar takers passing. Additionally, our faculty have championed the implementation of Oregon’s Supervised Practice Portfolio Examination (SPPE) which offers our graduates an alternative path to licensure in Oregon. No matter the method, our students find success in their future because of the education they receive at Lewis & Clark.

“The South Asian Law Student Association has been a great outlet and opportunity for me to make friends, help organize, participate in, and run student events, and network with attorneys and judges from the Portland community. Overall, it has enriched my law school experience by allowing me to be a part of a close community of friends and law school colleagues within the greater law school community.”

IT'S ALL ABOUT BALANCE

Our students do their best work when they find a healthy balance between school, work, and all the eclectic experiences offered in Portland. On campus, over 30 student-led groups engage you with peers and connect you with the greater Pacific Northwest community.

Student groups range from the academic-focused, like moot court and law review, to the recreational, like the Cycling Club. There are also numerous affinity-based groups including the Black Law Student Association, Women's Law Caucus, and OutLaw, our LGBTQ+ student association.

Student organizations provide social outlets like movie nights, weekend hiking trips, and therapy dog visits, as well as networking and mentorship opportunities. Getting involved in these groups will help you to make meaningful connections with upper-division peers and professionals from the legal community, fostering a sense of belonging and
